Nussle Taking Key Positions in the Financial Arena

As policy makers, business leaders and the media all turn their attention to the economy, job creation and the state of federal budget policy, Jim Nussle announces two new appointments.

Nussle has been named to the advisory board of private equity firm Avista Capital Partners, and will be joining cable network CNBC as a policy and political contributor.

With more than twenty years in Washington, almost all of which has been focused on federal budget policy and economic issues, these key positions solidify Nussle as one of Washington's leading advisors with strategic insight into the intersection of business, government and public policy.
