TRISH REGAN

Trish Regan is one of America's leading independent voices in financial and political media, reaching more than 300 million viewers each month across YouTube, Facebook, and major digital platforms. An award-winning journalist, author, and television host, she is known for breaking down the most important economic, political, and global trends—and explaining what they mean for businesses, investors, and everyday Americans.

As the founder of a rapidly growing independent media network anchored by the daily Trish Regan Show, she delivers real-time analysis on markets, geopolitics, and policy to millions of viewers worldwide. Her perspective—shaped by experience across Wall Street, Washington, and global media—offers audiences a rare combination of financial expertise and frontline reporting.

Before launching her independent platform, Regan anchored top-rated programs on CNBC, Bloomberg Television, and Fox Business. Over the course of her career, she has interviewed U.S. presidents, foreign heads of state, and Fortune 500 CEOs and has reported extensively on global markets, economic policy, and international affairs. She has received Emmy nominations for her investigative reporting and documentary work, including coverage of terrorist financing in Latin America.

Regan began her career in emerging debt markets at Goldman Sachs while attending Columbia University and went on to report for Bloomberg, CBS News, and MarketWatch. She later served as a front-page economic columnist for USA Today and anchored Bloomberg's Street Smart with Trish Regan, where she led political and market coverage during the 2012 election cycle. At Fox Business, she hosted The Intelligence Report and Trish Regan Primetime and co-anchored two Republican presidential debates as part of the first all-female moderator team in U.S. history.

A dynamic and engaging speaker, Regan brings clarity, insight, and energy to complex topics—ranging from global markets and economic policy to media, geopolitics, and the future of American business. She lives outside New York City with her husband and three children.
