

JOHN KATKO

Hon. John Katko is an accomplished leader in Congress, serving since 2015 as the Representative for New York's 24th Congressional District. John was overwhelmingly reelected each cycle in one of the most competitive House districts in the country.

During his time in Congress, John developed a strong policy and communications operation, achieving significant legislative successes with 98 bills passed the House and 45 signed into law.

Early in his career in Congress, John became a strong voice on the House Homeland Security Committee. In 2020, he was selected to lead House Homeland Security Committee Republicans. As Ranking Member, John led Republican efforts to secure the border and prioritized a robust focus on cybersecurity, as well as transportation and airport security.

John has strong relationships in New York and Washington across the political spectrum. He is well-respected for his willingness to work across the aisle and has been consistently ranked among the most bipartisan members of Congress by the nonpartisan Lugar Center. As Chair of the Republican Governance Group, John was responsible for expanding political engagement with results-oriented Members of Congress.

Prior to serving in Congress, John spent nearly twenty years as a federal organized crime prosecutor with the U.S. Department of Justice, prosecuting hundreds of complex criminal cases including organized crime, drug and human trafficking, murder, and political corruption. He has extensive experience on the U.S. Northern, Southern, and Maritime borders. Additionally, he served as a litigator with the U.S. Securities & Exchange Commission and as an antitrust and commercial litigation attorney in private practice.

John and his wife, Robin, live in Camillus, New York and enjoy spending time with their three adult sons.
